claimed that Dhebar failed to secure any permissions from either the state or central governments and that the MoU lacks any legitimate standing. Sao framed it as an election stunt with no real foundation, echoing the aggressive stance taken by several BJP leaders against the agreement.

Mayor Aiyaz Dhebar responded by rejecting the allegations, asserting that his trip to Russia was not a personal visit. He insisted that the invitation

Patanjali's ayurvedic medicine 'Bronchom' is more effective than steroids in Asthma: Study

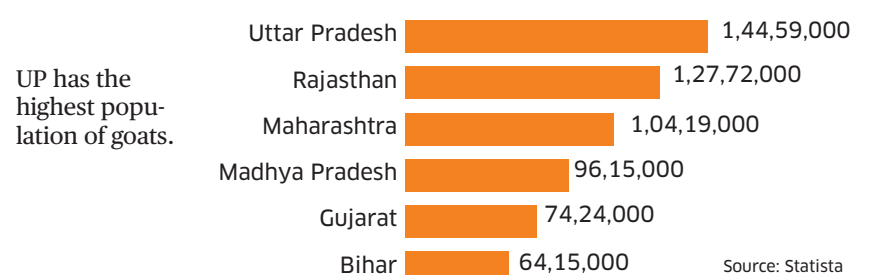

HARIDWAR: In a significant breakthrough for Ayurvedic medicine, 'Bronchom', a treatment developed by Patanjali, has been found to be more effective than conventional steroids in treating asthma, according to a recent study published in the international journal Molecular Medicine. Patanjali's Acharya Balkrishna explained that traditional allopathic treatments often resort to powerful steroids when other medications fail. "While these steroids may offer temporary relief, they are notorious for their severe side effects, often leaving patients in a dire condition with little hope for a cure, he stated. 'Bronchom', Balkrishna added, "offers a new lease on life for asthma patients." "The medicine has shown efficacy where even allopathic steroids fall short, and it does so without the adverse side effects associated with steroids," he added further. The study, conducted on a mouse model of Mixed Granulocytic Asthma, revealed that 'Bronchom' reduced hyperresponsiveness in a dose-dependent manner. Furthermore, it significantly improved conditions related to eosinophils, neutrophils, and mucus secretion in the respiratory system—areas where it outperformed traditional steroids. Kamala Harris: The new face of Democratic hopes

With Kamala Harris officially accepting the Democratic Party's nomination for the US presidency, the stage is set for a high-stakes battle in the November 5 election. Just a month ago, Republican Donald Trump seemed unbeatable, exuding confidence after surviving an assassination attempt and watching his opponent, President Joe Biden, struggle. However, the political landscape has shifted dramatically in recent weeks. Faced with declining support and internal party pressure, Biden withdrew from the race, paving the way for Kamala Harris, a candidate who embodies the diverse and evolving face of America. Kamala's acceptance speech hit all the right notes, strategically positioning her as the antidote to what she described as the "extremely serious" threat of a second Trump term. Her critique of Trump, while pointed, resonated with a populace still haunted by the chaos of his previous presidency, including the infamous Capitol insurrection. Trump's initial bravado is now tempered by the reality that Kamala represents a formidable challenge. Her rising favorability ratings, as indicated by the latest Gallup poll, reflect a growing momentum that cannot be easily dismissed. However, Kamala faces a significant challenge herself. Trump is no ordinary opponent; he is a master of spectacle and deflection. The upcoming televised debate between Kamala and Trump will be a crucial moment in this election. While Trump managed to outmaneuver Biden in their June debate, largely due to Biden's visible struggles with age and health, Kamala presents a different challenge. She is younger, sharper, and prepared to engage in a battle of wits. Yet, Kamala's path to victory requires more than just sharp attacks on Trump. While her critique of his tenure may rally the Democratic base, she must also articulate a clear and compelling vision for America's future. Mere Trump-bashing, while satisfying for many, won't be enough to sway undecided voters. Kamala needs to present a comprehensive and actionable plan that addresses the nation's pressing issues and charts a new course for progress.

IITs and IISc shine again in NIRF rankings

The Indian Institute of Technology (IIT) Madras and the Indian Institute of Science (IISc) Bengaluru have once again dominated the 9th National Institutional Ranking Framework (NIRF) rankings. These rankings assess the overall quality of institutions through various criteria, including teaching, research, inclusivity, and graduation outcomes. The IITs continue to excel in the engineering field, maintaining their top positions as in previous years. From 2021, research was included as a key criterion, further highlighting the importance of academic contributions. While the NIRF rankings provide valuable insights, there is a need for broader engagement and the inclusion of additional disciplines to make the rankings more competitive and meaningful. Ultimately, the true measure of an institution's success is the impact its graduates have on society. Knowledge should be coupled with compassion, foresight, and utility to contribute meaningfully to the nation's progress. The IITs and IISc have consistently demonstrated their excellence, but ongoing improvements and expansions in evaluation criteria will ensure that the rankings remain relevant and beneficial for all stakeholders.

Seventy-eight years after independence, India continues to grapple with the horrific reality of crimes against women. Recent cases like the rape and murder of a female doctor in Kolkata, the assaults on young girls in Badlapur, and other heinous acts across the country have instilled deep fear among women. Despite hopes that the Nirbhaya case would mark a turning point, such crimes persist, raising serious concerns about the effectiveness of our legal system.

The lack of fear among criminals and the inconsistent enforcement of strict punishments remain critical issues. The recent case in Ajmer, where a rapist was sentenced to life imprisonment after 32 years, highlights the problem of delayed justice. Such prolonged legal processes fail to deter offenders and erode public confidence in the judicial system.

Over the past few years, both central and state governments have introduced and amended laws to protect women and prevent crimes against them.

These include significant acts such as the Nirbhaya Act, the POCSO Act, and other legislative measures aimed at safeguarding women's rights.

However, the question remains: Are these laws being implemented effectively, and do they truly protect women from harm?

Despite these stringent laws and ongoing awareness efforts, the National Crime Records Bureau's statistics reveal a disturbing trend of rising crimes against women. The slow process of police investigations, widespread corruption, protection of criminals by influential people, and leniency in sentencing have all contributed to diminishing the fear of law among criminals.

There is an urgent need for the police to expedite investigations and leverage technology to ensure swift justice and accountability.

Frequent demands for CBI investigations in serious cases reflect growing public distrust in state police forces. Crimes against women should be fast-tracked in courts, and the judicial process must be made stricter and faster. Political parties must unite beyond caste, religion, and party lines to oppose these heinous acts and ensure that justice is served to the victims.

Workplace leaders and governments must implement special security measures for women, ensuring that they feel safe in all environments. Education, culture, societal values, and families play a crucial role in shaping attitudes towards women.

The ongoing struggle for women, especially from marginalized communities, to access justice highlights the need for greater awareness of their rights and the legal remedies available to them.

Indian society must undergo a significant shift in attitude violence against women must never be ignored, justified, or silenced.

Blaming victims only discourages them from seeking justice, and social ostracism further deters them. Furthermore, it is essential to foster a societal environment where victims feel supported and empowered to speak out against their aggressors without fear of retribution or stigmatization.

Community leaders, educators, and the media all have crucial roles to play in changing the narrative around crimes against women and reinforcing the message that such acts are utterly unacceptable.

Public awareness campaigns, legal education, and grassroots activism can contribute to a cultural transformation that prioritizes women's safety and dignity.

Until every victim bravely steps forward to ensure that criminals are punished, and until society stands united in support of victims, eradicating crimes against women in India will remain an immense challenge.

This is not just a legal issue but a societal one that demands immediate and sustained action from all sectors of society, including the government, civil society, and ordinary citizens. Only through collective efforts can we hope to create a safer and more just environment for all women in India.

Blueprint for sustained growth in Rural India

The Union Budget's provisions for agriculture, employment, and infrastructure aim to drive sustainable growth in rural India, ensuring better livelihoods and development for rural communities. by Satish Singh

Agriculture, digitization, rural employment, and infrastructure development, conveying optimism for the future of rural India.

The Union Budget has earmarked Rs.1.52 lakh crore for agriculture and allied sectors, with Rs.60,000 crore allocated to the Pradhan Mantri Kisan Samman Nidhi. These provisions are aimed at bolstering the agriculture sector and, by extension, rural India. Among the key initiatives, the digitization of land records is a notable step. The budget outlines the inclusion of 6 crore farmers and their lands under a comprehensive land registry. This initiative will streamline GIS mapping, ownership rights, and registration, simplifying access to various government schemes for farmers.

To promote sustainable agriculture, the government has proposed the establishment of 10,000 bio-research centers. These centers are expected to reduce the use of pesticides, decrease soil erosion, and promote the use of animal waste as manure. In tandem, the government aims to bring 1 crore farmers into natural farming practices within the next two years, with provisions for branding and certification. This shift towards natural farming is expected to improve public health by reducing reliance on synthetic chemicals, which often diminish the nutritional value of food.

To address the issue of food wastage, the government plans to develop large clusters near consumption centers, ensuring that surplus produce from villages is utilized efficiently. Furthermore, the expansion of the Kisan Credit Card (KCC) scheme, which was initially launched in 1998, will now extend to five more states where eligible farmers have yet to receive its benefits.

Digital Public Infrastructure (DPI) is another significant focus, aimed at integrating farmers and their lands into the digital network within three years. DPI will create a physical network necessary for farmers to access various goods and services, enhancing their connectivity and economic opportunities. The National Co-operation Policy is also set to expand the portfolio of agricultural loans by encouraging banks to partner with Farmer Producer Organizations (FPOs), cooperative societies, and agri-startups.

The budget allocates Rs.86,000 crore for the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MGNREGA), ensuring 100 days of employment for adult members of rural families. This scheme proved crucial during the COVID-19 pandemic, providing a safety net for rural youth and their families.

Health initiatives are also prioritized, with Rs.28,000 crore earmarked for the National Health Mission, which aims to improve healthcare access for children, women, and underprivileged populations in rural areas. In addition, the budget includes Rs.14,600 crore for crop insurance, a critical provision given the dependence of Indian agriculture on monsoons and the recurring threats of floods and droughts.

The Ayushman Bharat Yojana (PMJAY), a health scheme benefiting marginalized communities, receives Rs.7,300 crore, ensuring continued access to healthcare for the poorest sections of society. Meanwhile, the Pradhan Mantri Employment Generation Programme (PMEGP), which aims to create employment opportunities in rural and urban areas, is supported with a budget of Rs.2,300 crore.

Infrastructure development is also a key focus, with Rs.19,000 crore allocated for the Pradhan Mantri Gram Sadak Yojana, which aims to connect rural villages with urban areas through paved roads.

Additionally, Rs.4,800 crore has been earmarked for the Pradhan Mantri Vishwakarma Yojana, which supports craftsmen and artisans in the unorganized sector.

To provide financial relief to farmers, the government has proposed a Rs.1.19 lakh crore subsidy for urea, a widely used fertilizer. Lastly, to combat hunger, Rs.2.05 lakh crore has been allocated to the Pradhan Mantri Garib Kalyan Anna Yojana (PMGKAY), ensuring food security for 81.35 crore beneficiaries over the next five years.

These budgetary provisions collectively aim to ensure sustained growth and development in rural India, addressing key areas such as agriculture, employment, health, and infrastructure.

Ensuring women's safety together

It's unfortunate that women in India hesitate to go out at night due to safety concerns. Daily reports of rape cases instill fear, making it ironic that in a country that reveres goddesses, women feel unsafe. A collective effort is essential to change this reality. From authorities to ordinary citizens, we all share the responsibility to create a safer environment for women. Only through united action can we hope to make a meaningful difference. We must also address the deep-rooted cultural norms and attitudes that perpetuate gender-based violence, ensuring long-term change and security for all.

Uncovering the cover-up truth

If the probe agency's allegation of a cover-up is true, it is a disgrace and raises critical questions. Who are the powerful figures being protected, and why? The nation, still reeling from the Kolkata horror, demands justice and accountability. A thorough investigation is essential to ensure that those responsible for the crime, and anyone attempting to shield them, are held accountable. The public's trust depends on bringing all culprits to justice without exception. This is not just about justice for the victims, but also about restoring faith in our institutions.

NEW DELHI: Foreign investors infused Rs 11,366 crore in the Indian debt market so far this month, pushing the net inflow tally in the debt segment to over the Rs 1-lakh-crore mark. According to data with the depositories, Foreign Portfolio Investors (FPIs) injected Rs 11,366 crore in the debt market this month (till August 24). NEW DELHI: Release of key macro-economic numbers, monthly derivatives expiry, and global cues are likely to drive stock market movement this week, according to analysts. Markets will also be reacting to remarks made by the US Federal Reserve Chair Jerome Powell, they said. “This week, we expect the market to witness a gradual up-move with stock-specific action. The focus will shift to monthly F&O expiry as well as global cues.
Markets on Monday would react to commentaries of the US Fed Chair at the Jackson Hole Symposium,” Siddhartha Khemka, Head of Retail Research, Motilal Oswal Financial Ser-

“The market has been expecting an interest rate cut during the next Federal Reserve meeting in September. There are indications that the rate cuts could happen at a faster pace, especially with the weakening of jobs data. “However, Powell believes that the chances of the US economy entering a recession in the near term are very low.

Praising Ranbir Kapoor in Animal, Rajkummar Rao said that he "loved him in it and his performance in the film was mind-blowing".

Actor Rajkummar Rao recently shared his thoughts on the glorification of negative characters in films and his reaction to Ranbir Kapoor's Animal. On Raj Shamani's podcast, Rao was asked about the tendency of some viewers to idolize characters like Shah Rukh Khan's Devdas. He emphasized that while Devdas is a compelling and tragic figure, he should not be seen as a role model. "If you want to become Devdas after watching it, the problem lies with you. The film tells a story based on a book, not a guide for living. Devdas's tragic end is a cautionary tale, showing the consequences of such a lifestyle, not a celebration of it," Rao explained. Regarding Animal, Rao expressed his admiration for the film and Ranbir Kapoor's performance. "I loved Animal and enjoyed watching it. Did I have some issues with the film? Maybe some scenes here and there. But overall, I enjoyed the film.

Rajkummar Rao spoke about Ranbir Kapoor's Animal and Shah Rukh Khan's Devdas.

Skipping breakfast for a month can have significant effects on your body and overall health. Breakfast is crucial for jump-starting your metabolism and providing essential nutrients after a night of fasting. While intermittent fasting, which often involves skipping breakfast, has become popular, it can lead to adverse effects when practiced long-term. Without breakfast, your metabolism may slow down. This meal helps initiate the process of converting food into energy. Without it, your body might conserve calories rather than burning them, potentially leading to weight gain and making weight management more challenging. Additionally, missing breakfast can cause unstable blood sugar levels. This instability often results in irritability, fatigue, and poor concentration throughout the day. To compensate, you might overeat later, disrupting your nutritional balance and increasing the risk of unhealthy eating patterns. Nutrient defianother concern. Breakfast typically provides important nutrients like fibre, vitamins, and minerals. Regularly skipping this meal can lead to deficiencies that impact overall health, affecting everything from immune function to bone strength and energy levels. Chronic breakfast skipping, particularly in the context of intermittent fasting, can also elevate stress hormone levels, negatively affecting mental health. Increased stress can lead to mood swings and anxiety, complicating weight management and daily energy levels. Moreover, intermittent fasting might impair cognitive function, making it harder to focus and perform tasks effectively. Incorporating a balanced breakfast into your daily routine is crucial for maintaining optimal health and energy levels while avoiding the negative impacts of prolonged fasting practices.

How pepper and ghee can promote mental calm

A pinch of black pepper combined with a spoonful of desi ghee can be surprisingly effective in calming your mind. Black pepper contains piperine, which enhances mood and promotes relaxation. Desi ghee, rich in healthy fats, supports brain health and aids in reducing stress. When mixed together, these ingredients create a soothing remedy that can help alleviate anxiety and improve mental clarity. Incorporating this simple blend into your daily routine may offer a natural way to manage stress and promote overall well-being. Just a small amount can make a big difference in helping you find calm amidst the chaos.

Understanding Parvovirus B19: A guide to slapped cheek disease

Central Chronicle News

Parvovirus infection, commonly known as 'slapped-cheek disease,' is a highly contagious and common illness, particularly in those with weakened immune system.

Parvovirus B19, a common yet often overlooked virus, is responsible for the condition known as 'slapped cheek' disease. Officially referred to as erythema infectiosum, this viral infection primarily affects children but can also impact adults. The disease gets its nickname from the distinctive rash it produces, which resembles the red marks of a slap on the cheeks. The virus spreads through respiratory droplets when an infected person coughs or sneezes. Symptoms typically begin with mild flu-like signs, such as fever, fatigue, and a sore throat. Within a few days, a characteristic rash appears, starting with bright red cheeks and often spreading to the body and limbs, creating a lacy or reticular pattern. While slapped cheek disease is generally mild and self-limiting, it can present more serious risks for pregnant women. Infected pregnant women may face complications such as hydrops fetalis, a condition where the foetus accumulates fluid in multiple body cavities. The virus can also exacerbate conditions in individuals with weakened immune systems or chronic anaemia. Diagnosis is usually based on the appearance of symptoms, but blood tests can confirm the presence of parvovirus B19. Treatment focuses on managing symptoms, such as controlling fever and relieving discomfort. Most people recover fully without complications, but practicing good hygiene, including handwashing and avoiding close contact with infected individuals, helps prevent the spread of the virus.

Pakistan, which conceded a 117-run first innings lead despite declaring at 448-6, was bowled out by a disciplined pace and spin attack after it resumed on 23-1 and still 94 runs behind.

RAWALPINDI: Rawalpindi: Bangladesh overcame political turmoil back home to achieve a historic 10-wicket victory over Pakistan, who collapsed to 146 all out on the dramatic final day of the first Test on Sunday. Off-spinner Mehidy Hasan Miraz and left-arm spinner Shakib Al Hasan, a former lawmaker in Sheikh Hasina's government, claimed seven wickets between them, following a strong performance from the pace bowlers that dismantled Pakistan's top order. This triumph marked Bangladesh's first win in 14 Test matches against Pakistan.

● Two stations (Mirpur-10 and Kazipara) remain shut due to vandalism.
A wave of the resistance has subsided and an interim government has been in place since August 8, but the streaks of rebellion remain in many streets of Dhaka. In the past few days, several government employees have held protests in groups at the government secretariat while some demonstrators have marched in streets near the famous Ahsan Manzil and other areas to put forth their demands. Many Dhaka University students are raising their voices regularly at the Raju Memorial Site opposite the Teacher Student Centre (TSC) for holding students' union elections at the varsity and demanding "no political interference" on the campus. The anti-government protests have initiated a churn in Bangladesh and while education goes on, so do protests to achieve a more equitable society "free of discrimination and corruption". Ibrahim Mahmud, a student of public administration who took part in a varsity protest earlier this week, alleged that members of Chhatra League, the student wing of the ousted Awami League, used to "harass" several fellow students in the campus.

NASA extends astronauts' space stay to February

Press Trust Of India
CAPE CANAVERAL: NASA decided Saturday it's too risky to bring two astronauts back to Earth in Boeing's troubled new capsule, and they'll have to wait until next year for a ride home with SpaceX. What should have been a weeklong test flight for the pair will now last more than eight months. The seasoned pilots have been stuck at the International Space Station since the beginning of June. A cascade of vexing thruster failures and helium leaks in the new capsule marred their trip to the space station, and they ended up in a holding pattern as engineers conducted tests and debated what to do about the flight back. After almost three months, the decision finally came down from NASA's highest ranks on Saturday. Butch Wilmore and Suni Williams will come back in a SpaceX capsule in February. Their empty Starliner capsule will undock in early September and attempt to return on autopilot with a touchdown in the New Mexico desert.

UK BOLLYWOOD ORCHESTRA

New London Bollywood Orchestra to bring iconic film songs alive on stage

LONDON: A brand-new Bollywood orchestra is all set to curate a regular series of performances to bring iconic Hindi film melodies alive on stage in the UK, with a talented ensemble of artists in homage to some of India's best-known musicians. London Bollywood Orchestra will kick off with its inaugural show on October 5 at Wilton's Music Hall in east London, a historic venue dating back to the 1850s and often serving as a film set. It has been chosen as an ideal setting for singers Rekha and Navin Kundra to croon along with a talented 15-piece orchestra composed of a diverse range of instruments from tabla and dholak to flute, oboe, clarinet, saxophone, trumpet, trombone, guitars and violins. "We wanted a diverse show which gives us a span of decades and a span of styles, with music from the 1940s right up to the present day," Tim Pottier, the music director of the new project told PTI. "When you are performing live music, everything is spontaneous, almost like living on the edge. The old Bollywood tracks used to have that same nervous energy because they were often recorded in a very short time with a small number of microphones but hundreds of performers. So, the London Bollywood Orchestra will be bringing some of that everything-is-alive-right-now magic to stage," he said. PTI
