The system provides online tracking of pension sanction and payment process by the individual as well as the eHRMS is referred to as the electronic Human Resource Management System which has details including service records of government employees. Form simplification has been an important initiative of the Centre's "maximum government-minimum government" policy.

This new form and related changes in the business process of Bhavishya will be a game changer as on the one hand it simplifies the pension form submission for the employee through "a single sign only" and on the other hand achieves the end-to-end digitisation of the entire process of pension processing till the start of pension payment after retirement, according to an official statement.

'NRW requires investment in smart metering'

Shweta Upadhyay

Shweta Upadhyay is the Director and Head of SDG & Skill Building at Resilient Sustainable Private Limited. She specializes in environmental management and sustainability, focusing on implementing ESG strategies and advancing the UN Sustainable Development Goals.

BHILAI: Urban India's water sector faces critical challenges that require immediate attention and a multifaceted approach. Among the most pressing issues is Non-Revenue Water (NRW), where up to 50% of water is lost due to leaks, theft, and inaccurate metering. Addressing NRW requires investments in smart metering and Artificial Intelligence (AI)-driven leak detection systems. These technologies, combined with stricter enforcement against water theft and regular audits, can significantly reduce water losses. Another major challenge is distribution losses caused by aging infrastructure and poorly maintained pipelines. Upgrading these systems and integrating Industrial Internet of Things (IIoT) sensors for real-time monitoring can greatly minimize water wastage. Leaks, often unnoticed, contribute heavily to this problem. AI-based detection tools can help identify and repair leaks early, ensuring minimal water loss. Inconsistent water pressure is also a common issue in urban areas, leading to pipe bursts and additional leaks. Advanced pressure management systems, enhanced by AI, can maintain consistent pressure and prevent such problems. Seasonal water shortages, especially during summer, underscore the need for enhanced water storage through rainwater harvesting and groundwater recharge. Promoting water conservation practices, like recycling greywater, is essential for mitigating the strain on water supplies. Water contamination from industrial discharge and sewage leakage poses serious health risks. Upgrading treatment plants and enforcing stricter regulations on industrial effluents are crucial for ensuring safe water access. Unequal access to water, driven by outdated distribution systems and socio-economic disparities, must be addressed through better planning and public-private partnerships. Additionally, public awareness campaigns are vital for fostering a culture of conservation. As climate change intensifies, urban India must develop resilient water management plans, incorporating drought-resistant sources and improved stormwater management. By integrating technology, policy reform, and community engagement, urban India can navigate these challenges and secure a sustainable water future.

The problems of common men in problem resolution camp be sorted out soon.

HC evicts son of 80 yr old woman facing harassment

The court observed that the details painted a distressing picture of the petitioner's daily life, encumbered with neglect, health hazards, and psychological distress.

Press Trust Of India

NEW DELHI: Emphasising the necessity of safe, dignified and neglect-free living environment for senior citizens, the Delhi High Court has directed the son, daughter-in-law and grandchildren of an 80 year old woman to vacate the house they were living together in after the octogenarian alleged harassment and ill-treatment at their hands.

The petitioner, who invoked the provisions of the Maintenance and Welfare of Parents and Senior Citizens Act, said she was the sole and registered owner of the property and neither her son nor the daughter-in-law provided any care to her or her husband. She claimed that the ongoing marital discord between the son and the daughter-in-law was also a constant source of discomfort and stress, which was like a "slow death".

"The case highlights a recurring social issue where matrimonial discord not only disrupts the lives of the couple involved but significantly affects senior citizens. In this instance, the elderly petitioners, at a vulnerable stage of their lives, faced undue distress due to persistent familial conflicts. This situation reflects the need to address the welfare of senior citizens amidst family disputes," said the judge. To facilitate a resolution that respected the rights of the senior citizen as well as the residential rights of the daughter-in-law, the court directed the son to provide financial assistance of Rs 25 thousand to his wife to enable her to secure alternative accommodation for herself. "Once the financial support commences, Respondents No. 3 to 6 (son, daughter-in-law and two children) shall vacate the subject property and hand over vacant possession to the Petitioner within two months," ordered the court.

"Such circumstances compellingly argue for the necessity of ensuring that the living environment of senior citizens is safe, dignified, and free from any form of abuse or neglect, aligning with the core objectives of the Senior Citizens Act," stated the court. The described household conditions manifest not just as verbal disputes but extend into the physical environment of the home, contributing to an unhealthy and stress-filled living situation for the senior citizens, it said.

Reddy said that before the abrogation of Article 370, which granted

"The people of Jammu and Kashmir will reject any attempt to revive Article 370 and will support the BJP's vision for peace, progress, and development in the upcoming elections instead of terrorism and separatism patronised by others," he added.

Reddy criticised the Congress-NC alliance, alleging that its manifesto is "against peace and development and aligns more closely with Pakistan's interests than those of the people of India." Reddy invoked former prime minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee's efforts to forge peace with Pakistan, which, he said, were thwarted by Islamabad's "malicious intentions." # PM Modi apologises for Shivaji Maharaj statue collapse

Modi took a jibe at opposition, saying some people keep abusing freedom fighter and Hindutva.

Sumir Kaul

PALGHAR: Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Friday apologised to Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj and those hurt by the collapse of the warrior king's statue in Maharashtra's Sindhudurg district, an act coming in the backdrop of a huge row over the crash which provided ammunition to the opposition to target the Mahayuti government ahead of assembly polls. He also took a jibe at the opposition, saying some people keep abusing freedom fighter and Hindutva ideologue V D Savarkar, but are not ready to apologise for insulting him.

"Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj is not just a name or a king. For us, he is our deity. Today, I bow my head at his feet and apologise to my deity," Modi said in his first public remarks on the collapse of the statue of the 17th century Maratha warrior at Rajkot Fort in Sindhudurg district's Malvan tehsil.

The 35-foot structure, which fell on August 26, was unveiled by the PM on December 4, 2023, on the occasion of Navy Day.

"Our values are different. For us, nothing is bigger than our deity," Modi insisted while addressing a gathering after laying the foundation stone of the Rs 76,000-crore Vadhvan Port project in Palghar district located adjoining Mumbai. "Some people keep abusing Veer Savarkar, but are not ready to apologise for insulting him," he said, in an apparent dig at Leader of Opposition in Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi who has targeted the Hindutva ideologue multiple times in the past.

"The moment I landed here, I first apologised to Shivaji Maharaj over the statue collapse. I also apologise to the people hurt by the collapse," he told the gathering, seeking to assuage feelings of followers of the legendary warrior, a God-like figure in Maharashtra, and taking sting out of the opposition criticism on an emotive issue.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi highlighted the critical need for a modern port in India, emphasizing Palghar as the ideal location for the Vadhvan Port project. The ambitious port, once completed, will operate year-round, addressing the country's growing maritime needs. However, Modi lamented that political hurdles delayed the project's progress. Modi criticized the previous Maha Vikas Aghadi (MVA) government (2019-22)

Vadhvan Port delayed by politics

He recalled that in 2014, the people entrusted the NDA with governance, which allowed them to take significant steps for development. In 2016, under then-Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis, the Vadhvan project was pursued with seriousness. Plans were set to begin construction in 2020, but the government change in 2019, when Uddhav Thackeray allied with the NCP and Congress, halted progress for over two years.

IIMC Vice Chancellor Anupama Bhatnagar emphasised the importance of collaboration between institutions like IIMC and CIET-NCERT in creating awareness about media literacy in today's digital world. With the rise of social media and other digital platforms, misinformation has become a significant issue.

Cyclone Asna moves towards Oman, sparing Gujarat with minimal impact, officials confirm Friday.

AHMEDABAD/BHUJ: Cyclone Asna, formed over the coast of Kutch in Gujarat earlier during the day, has moved into the Arabian sea towards Oman without leaving any major impact on the region, officials said on Friday evening.

As a precautionary measure, the local administration had shifted nearly 3,500 persons to safer locations and had asked people living in huts and mud houses to take shelter in other buildings, said

A flooded area at Kothara village in Kutch district.

FASTFACTS

● Nearly 3,500 people relocated in Kutch as a precaution before Cyclone Asna passed safely.

● IMD confirms rare Cyclone Asna formation, originating from deep depression over Kutch coast.

Kutch district collector Amit Arora. "Since the cyclone has already entered the sea and is heading towards Oman, there was an impact on the coast. Except for some rain and winds blowing at considerable speed, there was no impact here. There was no immediate news about injury or death or collapse of any major structure," said Arora.

In a release issued on Friday evening, IMD said the deep depression over Kutch coast and adjoining areas of Pakistan had "intensified into Cyclonic Storm Asna and lay centered at 11:30 am over the same region nearly 190 km west-northwest of Bhuj". The IMD had earlier said the deep depression over the area might turn into a cyclonic storm by Friday morning, following which authorities took steps to shift people to safety.

The crucial importance of homework in child development

OUR VIEW |

Safeguarding hospitals: A critical need of our time

The Centre's recent directive to bolster security in hospitals is a long-overdue response to a deeply disturbing crisis: the safety of our healthcare workers. The horrific rape and murder of a junior doctor at Kolkata's RG Kar Medical College is a chilling reminder of the dangers faced by medical professionals, especially women, in what should be safe and secure environments. This tragedy has not only shaken the nation but also spotlighted the urgent need for systemic change. President Droupadi Murmu's expression of anguish reflects the broader societal failure to protect those who dedicate their lives to saving others. Hospitals, the very places meant for healing and care, have become perilous for healthcare workers, particularly during night shifts when security lapses are most pronounced. The Centre's recommendations, including joint security audits, CCTV installations, and extending the 112 helpline to healthcare workers, are essential starting points. However, these measures must be more than symbolic gestures; they must form part of a larger strategy that includes routine night patrols, control rooms within hospital campuses, and strict access controls to ward off potential threats. President Murmu's call for 'honest, unbiased self-introspection' demands that we confront the deeper societal issues fueling violence against women. The training of security personnel must go beyond basic protocols; regular drills and stringent visitor management systems are critical to create truly safe spaces. Equally important is addressing the mental health of healthcare workers, who are often burdened by high-stress environments and inadequate support systems. While the Centre's proactive stance on enhancing security in hospitals is commendable, its success hinges on the effectiveness of state-level implementation and institutional commitment. Ensuring the safety of healthcare workers is not just a government responsibility; it is a societal imperative. We must act collectively to transform our hospitals into safe havens where medical professionals can focus on their noble work without fear.

Global hunger stagnates; Urgent need for action

In the World (SOFI) report, released by the UN's FAO, highlights a troubling stagnation in global hunger, unchanged for three consecutive years. Themed "Financing to End Hunger, Food Insecurity, and Malnutrition in All Its Forms," the report urges enhanced, effective funding and a coordinated approach to tackle food insecurity and malnutrition. In 2023, 733 million people globally faced hunger, with 20.4% in Africa and 8.1% in Asia. Additionally, 2.33 billion experienced moderate to severe food insecurity, and over 2.8 billion couldn't afford a healthy diet in 2022, particularly in low-income countries. India's alarming statistics show that 55.6% of its population cannot afford a healthy diet, with 194.6 million undernourished between 2021-2023. Child malnutrition remains a major concern, with 21.9 million children affected by wasting (18.7%) and 36.1 million by stunting (31.7%). The report emphasizes the need for targeted interventions, comprehensive policies, and increased investment to transform agrifood systems and address inequalities. To combat hunger and malnutrition effectively, especially in the hardest-hit regions, a holistic and urgent approach is essential.

Homework plays a crucial role in the all-round development of children, reinforcing what is learned in school. It serves as a tool for revisiting subjects, strengthening understanding, and building confidence in academic performance. Here are some key reasons why homework is essential for children:

1. Enhancing Understanding and Knowledge Retention

Homework encourages children to review and practice what they learned in school. Repetition helps reinforce concepts, making it easier for students to grasp difficult subjects. By doing homework, students can better understand lessons, solidify their learning, and improve their grasp of the subject matter, resulting in better academic performance.

2. Building Problem Solving Skills

Homework tasks help develop problem-solving skills by requiring students to think critically and independently. Children learn to approach problems with a solution-oriented mindset, which is beneficial not only in academics but also in everyday life. This skill becomes especially valuable in professional settings where problem-solving is essential.

3. Developing Moral Values and Responsibility

Completing homework teaches children to follow instructions and respect authority. It instills a sense of responsibility as they complete assignments given by their teachers. Children learn the importance of discipline, time management, and commitment, which are vital traits for their future.

4. Preparing for Tests and Exams

Regular homework prepares students for tests and exams by keeping them engaged with the material. Through consistent practice, students can master each subject, reducing exam anxiety and boosting confidence. Homework also enhances concentration and helps students develop a deeper understanding of topics, making exam preparation more manageable.

5. Encouraging Time Management

Homework teaches children to manage their time effectively. Balancing schoolwork, homework, play, and rest helps children understand the importance of time and prioritize tasks. Good time management skills learned through homework can help them become disciplined and efficient adults.

6. Enhancing Manual Skills and Creativity

Assignments that involve drawing, model-making, or hands-on activities encourage children to explore their creativity. Engaging in such tasks helps develop fine motor skills and allows students to connect academic learning with creative expression. This blend of knowledge and creativity fosters a more profound interest in subjects and promotes a love for learning.

7. Boosting Interest in Education

Children often find school difficult and may lose interest in studies.

However, homework designed to be simple, interesting, and engaging can rekindle their enthusiasm for learning. With supportive guidance from teachers and parents, students can develop a positive attitude towards education, turning challenging subjects into enjoyable learning experiences.

8. Instilling a Sense of Achievement

Completing homework and receiving positive feedback from teachers builds self-esteem and encourages children to strive for more. The desire to meet expectations and receive praise motivates them to work harder, fostering a sense of achievement and pride in their work.

What Should Homework Be Like?

Homework should be manageable, interesting, and tailored to the child's abilities. Teachers should assign tasks that are simple yet engaging, like writing short essays, creating model charts, or memorizing key points. Assignments should help students recall class lessons, connect learning with personal experiences, and prepare them for exams without feeling overwhelming.

Homework should not be seen as a burden but as a stepping stone to success. By making homework a positive experience, children can develop a lifelong love of learning, enabling them to succeed academically and become responsible, well-rounded individuals.

Microplastics in Brains: A growing concern

Microplastics, tiny fragments of plastic, have been found in human brains for the first time, raising concerns about their potential health impacts and environmental exposure. By Sarah Hellewell

Concerns are arising about microplastic contamination and its potential effects on the human body.

Plastic is everywhere—in our clothes, vehicles, phones, and even our food containers. The recent discovery of microplastics in human brains has raised alarms, adding to the growing concerns about the potential health impacts of these tiny fragments. A study from the United States found microplastics in human brain samples for the first time, highlighting the urgent need to understand their effects on our health.

What Are Microplastics?

Microplastics are plastic particles smaller than five millimetres, often invisible to the naked eye. They originate from the breakdown of larger plastic items and have been found in drinking water, food, and various everyday products, making human exposure inevitable and constant. The health implications of such widespread exposure are still not fully understood, but ongoing research is shedding light on potential risks.

The Latest Findings

The study examined samples from 51 men and women, analysing liver, kidney, and brain tissues. Surprisingly, researchers found up to 30 times more microplastics in brain samples compared to other organs. This may be due to the high blood flow to the brain, which could carry plastic particles, or because the brain, unlike other organs, renews its cells less frequently, allowing plastics to accumulate.

The study found that microplastic levels in brain samples increased by about 50% between 2016 and 2024, likely reflecting the growing environmental plastic pollution. The most common microplastic detected was polyethylene, used in everyday items like plastic bags and bottle caps. While this study is a significant first step, it remains a pre-print, meaning it hasn't been fully validated by independent researchers.

How Do Microplastics Reach the Brain?

Microplastics enter the body primarily through contaminated food and water, but they can also be inhaled. Once inside, these particles can disrupt the gut microbiome and cause inflammation, affecting the entire body, including the brain. Studies on fish and mice have shown that ingested microplastics can enter the bloodstream and reach the brain, crossing the blood-brain barrier—a crucial protective layer designed to keep harmful substances out of the brain.

Potential Health Concerns

The presence of microplastics in the brain is concerning, although the full impact on human health is still unknown. Laboratory studies suggest that microplastics may cause brain inflammation, cell damage, and altered gene expression. There is also a risk that microplastics could carry environmental toxins or harmful bacteria into the body, posing further health risks. Additionally, chemicals leaching from microplastics, such as hormone-disrupting BPA, add to the potential dangers.

Minimising Exposure

Although microplastics are ubiquitous and difficult to avoid, reducing exposure is possible. Avoid single-use plastics, especially in food and drink packaging, and minimise synthetic fibres in your home and clothing. Supporting efforts to reduce plastic waste can help lower environmental contamination. Research is ongoing to understand how to prevent microplastics from entering our bodies, including exploring the role of diet and probiotics in maintaining the gut barrier's integrity.

Microplastics in the brain represent a new frontier in environmental health, urging us to rethink our reliance on plastic and take proactive steps to protect our well-being.

YOUR LETTERS

Urgent need for deterrence

The President has emphasized the need for 'honest self-introspection' and creating deterrence against crime. Swift trials in designated fast-track courts and expedited appeals through special benches are essential. Penal laws should be amended to impose a minimum punishment of the death sentence, executed promptly. These measures, if implemented effectively, could be a gamechanger in curbing the rising criminal menace. Establishing strict consequences will create a powerful deterrent in the minds of potential offenders.

SC sub-categorisation demand rises

The demand for sub-categorisation within the SC reservation order is growing across states like UP, MP, Rajasthan, Bihar, Punjab, and Haryana. Major parties such as the Congress, Samajwadi Party, and JD(U) face challenges in taking a clear stance due to the strong SC presence and upcoming elections. While SC communities have diverse political loyalties, the push for sub-categorisation might unify them under parties like the Bahujan Samaj Party or Lok Janshakti Party (Ram Vilas), closely monitoring any opposition to the sub-classification policy.

The hidden effects of screen time on your bone health

In our digital age, heavy laptop and mobile use can significantly impact bone health. Prolonged screen time often leads to poor posture, with many people hunching over devices, which strains the spine and can contribute to issues like chronic back pain and poor spinal alignment. This sedentary behavior also reduces physical activity, weakening bones over time due to lack of weight-bearing exercise. To combat these effects, incorporate regular breaks, practice good ergonomics, and engage in weight-bearing exercises like walking or strength training. Prioritizing these habits helps maintain bone strength and supports overall health, countering the negative impact of excessive screen time.

Sophie Devine to step down as New Zealand’s women’s T20 captain after World Cup

CHRISTCHURCH: New Zealand’s star all-rounder Sophie Devine will step down as captain of the national T20 team after the World Cup in October to focus on her playing role and nurture “future leaders” in the format. The 34-year-old will, however, continue to lead New Zealand’s ODI team. Devine, who has been a key figure in New Zealand’s cricket since her debut in 2006, has scored 3,268 runs in 135 T20Is. She took over the T20I captaincy in 2020, succeeding Amy Satterthwaite, and led the team in 56 matches. “I’m very proud to have had the privilege to captain the Winner of the Tokyo Paralympics gold three years back, Avani, 22, shot a superb 249.7 to erase her own Paralympic record of 249.6 set in the Japanese capital three years back.

Mona said, "It was very difficult but I succeeded. So, thank you. Being in the company of Avani definitely helped. She is a champion and she inspires me."

The 37-year-old Mona, who dabbled in several sports including shot-put, powerlifting and wheelchair volleyball before settling on shooting, notched up 228.7 for the third-place finish.

Kremlin unfazed by ICC warrant for Putin's visit

The visit, scheduled for Sept 3, will be Putin's first trip to an ICC member state since warrant was issued in March 2023 over suspected war crimes in Ukraine.

MOSCOW: The Kremlin says it has “no worries” about President Vladimir Putin's upcoming visit to Mongolia, a county that is a member of the International Criminal Court, which last year issued a warrant for his arrest.

The visit, scheduled for September 3, will be Putin's first trip to an ICC member state since the warrant was issued in March 2023 over suspected war crimes in Ukraine. Under the court's founding treaty, the Rome Statute, ICC members are bound to detain suspects for whom an arrest warrant has been issued by the court if they set foot on their soil.

But the court doesn't have any enforcement mechanism. In a famous case, then-Sudanese President Omar al-Bashir wasn't arrested in 2015 when he visited South Africa, which is a member of the court,

Putin spokesperson Dmitry Peskov, who previously stressed that Rus-

According to a statement released by the Kremlin on Thursday, Putin will travel to Mongolia at the invitation of President Ukhnaa Khurelsukh “to participate in the ceremonial events dedicated to the 85th anniversary of the joint victory of the Soviet and Mongolian armed forces over the Japanese militarists on the Khalkhin Gol River”.

Putin will also hold talks with Khurelsukh and other top Mongolian officials, the statement said. The ICC has accused Putin of personal responsibility for the abductions of children from Ukraine, where Moscow has fought a devastating war for the last 2½ years.
